SAID IN CYPRESS

By Newsy

This is going to be a "doggy" column this week. The reason we are saying what we have to say here is because we're vain enough to believe that this part of the newspaper is read if nothing else is!

Last week information failed to reach us due to an oversight which Faustino Montoya, Orange County Poundmaster, was particularly anxious to have all dog owners know. Because of the fearful rabies being carried right now by stray dogs and small animals, the county is going to pick up all unlicensed dogs. They had intended to begin in this area on Monday. But because the newspaper did not carry a warning notice first to dog owners in Cypress and Los Alamitos, Montoya hesitated to begin the campaign until you readers had had fair warning. About Saturday, though, and maybe Friday, the work will begin in earnest.

Remember, your pet will be considered an unlicensed stray unless that dog tag is displayed. It won't do you any good if you bought Fido's license, and then left it lying on the dresser or the cupboard shelf! The poundmaster isn't psychic. Licenses have been available at the Orange county animal shelter, Rte 2, 12562 Placentia ave., Orange, California, since January first, and a representative has also canvassed these communities. You can send a check and order your dog's tags by mail, Montoya says. He's given us fair warning, don't you think?

Anent rabies in general, Dr. Edward Lee Russell, county health officer, said in a recent press release that 23 cases of animal rabies had occurred in Los Angeles county, the latest being April 10, in Lakewood, Bellflower has also been involved. "By far the majority of these cases have been found in dogs," Dr. Russell states, "but cats, cows, ferrets, foxes, squirrels and other wild animals may also have and spread disease. Rabies is a disease which is 100% fatal for man and animal."

We heard on the radio one day that there are already as many cases of rabies reported this year in Los Angeles county as there were for the whole year of 1951. Also, after listening to one health officer give a report on the subject, the announcer added a terse little statement which we thought the most poignant of all. When symptoms of rabies in humans are recognized, it is too late.

In case you may be wondering, as we did, we called the particular veterinarian whom we consult. He is giving the rabies shots for three dollars. This may vary among the vets, but it seem reasonable enough to protect your dog and possibly some human life.

More about dogs—the show in Anaheim Sunday sponsored by the Santa Ana Kennel club proved to be a huge success, with a police estimate of around 3,500 cars, and an attendance hovering around 10,000. Our own Ray O' Halloran knows there were a lot of people—they ate a lot of doughnuts!

New Bus Schedule

New schedule of arrival and departure of West Orange Transit company buses was put out this week, showing 14 stops in Cypress.

A change in management has taken place, with C. E. McFadden of Garden Grove now in charge. He is no stranger to Cypress bus patrons, as he was a driver when service on the line was started.

The new time table goes into effect April 27, 1952. See the company's schedule in this issue .

Want To Know The Time?

Mark your calendar on Saturday, April 26. That's tomorrow. Then the last thing before you go to ged, or the first thing when you get up, depending upon the hour, remember to set your clock's hands ahead one hour.

Daylight-saving time returns to California and most of the nation at 1 a.m. Sunday, April 27. The plan will be in effect until the last Sunday in September when Pacific standard time once again takes over.

Clergymen and church-goers especially will do well to heed these instructions.

Contest Looms As Two File For School Post

Frank Noe, incumbent trustee serving on the Cypress elementary school board, did not file for re-election to the office. Noe served one term.

First candidate to file was James Broadbelt, deputy on the sheriff's squad, who seeks election at the polls on May 16. Also filing before the deadline was K. E. "Johnny" Johnson, owner of the Village market located in Cypress manor, where both candidates reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Broadbelt live at 5561 Vonnie Lane. They have a young son, Ronnie. Broadbelt was president of the chamber of commerce for two one-year terms. He is at present secretary of the Cypress park board and secretary of the planning and development committee of Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county. He has lived in Cypress since 1947.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and their daughter, Sherry, who attends school here, live at 5701 Saint Ann ave, moving here three years ago from La Habra. Johnson holds a teacher's certificate issued by the state of South Dakota. He has been director of athletic activities in the local Veteran of Foreign Wars post.

Members of the board whose terms do not expire this year are A. E. Arnold, president and Dan Mackay, secretary .

Auto Crash Hurts La Rue

Hugh La Rue, prominent Cypress resident, was seriously hurt, and seven other persons, all occupying one car, received major injuries at 2:30 p.m. Monday in a head-on collision of two automobiles on Lincoln ave., west of Euclid ave.

La Rue was alone in his car when it collided with a car driven by Russell M. Brink of Long Beach. Injured in the Brink car were the driver, his wife, their daughter, Joyce, 12; William O. Larson of Bellflower; his wife, and their two children, Michael, 5, and Dianne, 2.

The eight injured all were taken to Anaheim Community hospital. Latest reports from the hospital indicate that La Rue is making a satisfactory recovery from his injuries, at the present time.

TAKA TAKES 'EM

Taka Tanaka was hailed as champ in the inter-school marble contest Wednesday, when the three local winners played at Centralia school with their champions. He is a seventh grade student.

Taka was first place winner, Odell Pardue from Cypress was second, and Joe Quevas, Centralia, copped third honors. The boys were awarded medals on red, blue and white ribbons, both for their local school wins and also for winning in the inter-school. John Rangel was third place winner among the locals.

Next contest will be the Orange County Council VFW play-off April 26 in Fullerton at Maple street. The boys will be accompanied by H. J. G. "Happy" Kreissler from Cypress, who is also council president.

Hold Funeral In Anaheim For "Bud" Cook

Orion "Bud" Cook passed away at his home, 5572 Danny avenue, Tuesday at the age of 49 years following a long illness. He had lived in this area for the past 30 years. He was a member of the Bellflower Christian church.

Funeral services will be held today (Friday) at two o'clock at the Backs, Campbell and Kaulbars chapel in Anaheim. The Rev. Al Casebeer will officiate, with burial in Anaheim cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, Frances C., two sons, Arthur and Tommy and a daughter, Miss Beverley Cook, all of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lon Cook of Hawaiian Gardens; two sisters, Mrs. Thomas McGuire of Anaheim and Mrs. Louise Traw of Bellflower and a brother, Lon Cook, Jr., of Norwalk.

Cypress School To Hold Open House Tuesday Eve - Honors School's Week

Plan now to visit Cypress Elementary school next Tuesday evening, April 29, from seven to nine o'clock, during open house being observed in honor of Public School's week. Parents will have an opportunity to visit their children's school classrooms, getting acquainted with the teachers and looking over materials used in the classroom. They may also observe the environment under which the child is schooled.

Miss Elizabeth Dickerson, superintendent, is especially desirous of having visitors at this open house, which is in observance of American Education week from April 28 through May 2.

Ed Robinson, member of the Masonic lodge in Buena Park, will represent Cypress when he visits Tuesday noon and is guest of the teaching staff at luncheon. Observance of public school's week is a project of the organization which was begun 33 years ago.

Chamber Asks For Benches At Bus Stops

Chamber members asked for benches along Lincoln avenue in Cypress for the convenience of bus patrons at the meeting of the group last week.

It was pointed out that there was no place for the people waiting for the buses to rest, so Jim Schmitt was asked to look into the possibilities of getting benches, with merchant advertising to pay for them.

Drainage problems in Cypress, which are causing alarm among residents due to the danger of small children drowning in the unprotected deep ponds in thickly populated areas of town, were discussed at length. A program is underway to take pictures of the worst spots, and present them to county authorities with complete descriptions of the situations so that action might be taken to eliminate them.

Local citizens are growing more and more alarmed, especially since a 12-year-old boy lost his life by drowning last week in a standing pool in Stanton, similar to the ones which exist in Cypress.

If the standing pools are not eliminated, members feel that Cypress is also in for the worst fly and mosquito problem it has faced in many years.

It was decided to contact proper authorities to get a detailed report of the reasons the large housing project as the corner of Lincoln and Hanson was denied.

It was voted to order a case of book matches with Cypress Chamber of Commerce printed on them. Money raised from the sale of the matches in local stores will be placed in the fund which provides candy and a Santa Claus for Cypress children at Christmas time.

Boy Scouts Receive Awards At Kiwanis Meeting Monday

Tenderfoot and second class awards were presented to outstanding Cypress Boy Socuts as part of their program for the Kiwanis club Monday night at Lloyd's drive-in.

Scoutmaster Warren TerBeest, assisted by Merle Bouse, brought 26 boys to the meeting, where the scouts went through their meeting rituals under the direction of their leader, Bill Thielman.

Receiving tenderfoot badges were Buddy De Bruyn and Norman Morgan. Second Class awards, presented by Kiwanis president Dick Hathcock, went to Todd Leverich, Robert Bouse, Jerome Gerber, Taka Tanaka, Joe Giles, George Sedia, Ronnie Thielman, David Obeyata, and Robert Hathcock.

Scoutmaster TerBeest gave a short talk explaining the work of the Cypress group, and officially thanked one of the Kiwanis members, George Ogata, for use of his truck for scout outings. The boys were treated to ice cream and refreshments after the meeting.

IS 103 YEARS OLD—Eugene Ellsworth, shown here with his dog, Trigger, noted his birthday Friday for the hundredth and then some time. He greeted members of the immediate family at 9122 Walker street, where he makes his home with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ellsworth. Born in Lynn county, Iowa on April 18, 1849, the aged man has lived an interesting life with varied experiences. Ellsworth has three sons and a daughter, all living in California. The only surviving relative of his family, a sister, died recently at the age of 94. —(P-T cut courtesy Bulletin)

PUBLIC SCHOOL WEEK

The thirty-third annual observance of Public Schools Week—April 28 through May 2—comes at a time when our state is being hard put to establish and maintain adequate classroom facilities for the swiftly increasing school age population.

In California it is said that more than 70,000 youngsters are on a part-time classroom schedule .Obviously, it will take a great deal of construction to provide the facilities necessary just to eliminate that deficit. And this does not take into account the current high birth rate and the additional youngsters of families moving into California.

It is important however, that all citizens, both parents and non-parents, take a greater interest in our public schools. Their active and alert support of our pubilc education system is essential to its preservation and progress.

The slogan for the week is, "The Public School—An American Heritage". Let's be proud of that heritage and keep it strong.

AIN'T IT THE LIMIT!

Believe it or not, there was once a great fear in this country that federal income taxes might go as high as 10 per cent!

That was 40 years ago when the only thing scarcer than a tax payer was a tax collector. But even in those days people could surmise what might happen to the tax rate. They turned out to be pretty good surmisers—too good!

Since that time, income taxes have become a common part of American life—in fact, so much a part of it that they now threaten to become the whole thing. With Uncle Sam dipping ever deeper in profits and pay checks there is a rising clamor for restraint of some kind to limit the amount the old boy can take. Stung by the angry complaints from people at home, a half dozen congressmen have introduced resolutions calling for Congress to submit a tax limitation amendment for approval of the states.

Meantime, the debate is growing over the proposed 25 per cent limitation on taxes which was launched 13 years ago when taxes were nothing like they are now. Twenty-seven state legislatures have gone on record favoring the limitation, and polls indicate that the general public favors it too, by a 3 to 2 margin.

The one overriding thought in all this is the increasing realization that some brake must be applied on taxes. As long as there is no llimit to what the people can be taxed there will be no limit to what the politicians will spend.

(P.S. In 1913 the income tax "take" was 85 million. The proposed 1952-53 federal budget calls for 85 billion. See what we mean?)—Calif. Commentator.

I RISE TO REMARK

By JOHN PHILLIPS

The fireworks continue. We had some in the committee on Appropriations, when the Armed Services subcomittee reported its bill to the full committee. The army, navy and air force has asked for $50.9 billion, and the subcommittee recomended $46.68 billion, although the three services have on hand, right now, a very large balance, and expect to have, unspent, at least $70 billion or more on June 30th. Thus, even if we appropriated no new money at all, the military would still have money left over a year from now.

There is a basic argument involved, on which I differ with some of my colleagues. They contend, if we start on a program of war production, all the money the army, or the navy, or the air force estimate they will need for tanks, or ships, or planes should be given them at once. They say that permits more rapid development of the program. They say they get better prices. There might be some justification of the idea if it worked out that way. The fact is, the great delays in delivering arms and supplies to our men in Korea, for example, are not due to any handicaps in the Congress, but to the failure to have plans ready, and to the constant changes in plans by the services.

Russia froze the plans and produces the MIG plane now giving us trouble in the Korean air. The United States is not in compar able production, because our plans are constantly being changed. Ask the men in Korea if they don't think a plane in the air is worth two in the blue prints.

This, however, is about money. I contend it is not in human nature to hand the military billions of dollars, on the basis of hasty estimates which are repeatedly proven too high, and then expect these military men to conduct an economical program. One estimate, in my mind at the moment, called for an item to cost $42,000,000—that would be the amount appropriated under this lump sum method. It actually cost $26,000,000. Figure this system in billions. My alternative, which was our system in the 80th Congress, would be to give "contract authorization," which would permit contracts to be written, and work started, but which would require the military to come to the Hill frequently and tell how the work was getting along, as they needed cash to implement the authorizations. All I can say is, it worked!

It was obvious that too little time was given the subcommittee to work over the details of the bill. This was admitted by its members. A motion, in the full committee, to return it for further study was lost by a narrow vote. On the floor, it was further reduced but what pleased me the most was that Congress took a deliberate step to regain its power as a representative body. We set a definite limit on the expenditure budget. No matter how much we appropriate, under this lump sum idea, the military may not SPEND, from the new money or from the money left-over from previous appropriations, more than $46,000,000,000, for these defense items. This is the first successful attempt to regain the power of the purse since I have been in the Congress. I hope the Senate sustains us.

GOING FULL BLAST

COUNTY COMMENT

By GEORGE E. HART

Getting back to the subject of water:

* * *

Orange county water officials, having tossed a bombshell up the river some time ago—the law suit to halt increased water pumping by the four cities of Riverside. San Bernardino, Redlands and Colton-have been waiting, with hands cupped to ears, for the explosion.

But quiet continues to reign in the upriver cities, and only the pleased murmur of the agricultural interests up that way has been heard. The farmers up there, all signs indicate, were themselves worried by the cities' growing inroads upon the underground supply.

The real objective, of course, was to smoke the four cities out of the local basin and drive them into the Metropolitan Water district, so they would use Colorado river water instead of the depleted local supply.

There is no present intention of pushing the injunction suit if the four cities do something about joining MWD—and the cities know it, because Orange county frankly told them so. But they also know that if Orange county should push the suit at any time—and win it—the four cities would have their water supply cut back abruptly to the amount they were using five years before the suit was filed. Since they have grown rapidly in these five years, a cut-back would leave them with about half enough water.

San Bernardino county will be easier to push into MWD than Riverside county, judging from statements made to Orange county representatives some time ago by James L. King, attorney for the San Bernardino Valley Water Conservation district.

In fact, said King, interests in both counties have been working nearly two years on the MWD proposal, inspired by the example of the Orange County Municipal Water district, which joined MWD last year. Mayors, city councils and rural interests have organized and incorporated. An engineering committee headed by Jerry Dibble and Les Hosgood of San Bernardino has started a study of the problem.

Two obstacles were mentioned by King, who said that Riverside county takes more than half the water supply from San Bernardino basin, through five agencies; therefore, Riverside county should join with San Bernardino county in annexing to MWD, it is felt in San Bernardino.

One obstacle is that some interests in Riverside and Corona have not yet been converted to the idea of joining MWD. Another is the provision in the MWD act which prevents annexations from crossing county lines. The two counties could not form one district.

However it is hoped to enact an amendment to the MWD act at the next session of the state legislature, which would remove the territorial restriction.

Meanwhile, Orange county's injunction suit is a gentle nudge toward MWD, which could become a hard legal sock.

Operation "Rat Hole" Nearly Completed

Delivery of the 25,000 acre feet of surplus Colorado river water purchased from Metropolitan Water district by the Orange county flood control district last summer is nearly cmpleted, it was stated this week by J. A. Bradley, flood control engineer, who said that 21,594 acre feet has been released.

The delivery, which started late last summer after MWD completed delivery of 25,000 acre feet of water to the Orange County Water district, was interrupted by heavy rains this winter.

The water is released from the Colorado aqueduct where it crosses the Santa Ana river near Arlington, 29 miles above the Orange county spreading grounds.

"Know Your County Government" Day Planned By Employees Ass'n.

George E. Hart

Government in Orange county is not a single entity, as some might suppose, administering the affairs of the people through one source of authority. It is a complicated mechanism made up of government within government, as will be shown when the Orange County Employees Association conducts its "Demonstration Day" May 17 at the courthouse.

"D-Day" will present the employees' project, "Know Your County Government" in a series of exhibits and demonstrations of what government does and how it is done.

Orange county government is the most complex of any in the state, due, it is said, to its metropolitan character and the density of rural population, which calls for municipal-type services outside of the cities.

Within the framework of Orange county government are no less than 162 political subdivisions. Each has its own function. They fall under the general classification of "special districts", apart from the 13 municipal governments.

Grouped into a score of particular designations, they cover the full range of governmental activity. There are road districts, drainage, fire lighting, library, harbor, flood control, cemetery, acquisition and improvements districts; soil conservation, mosquito abatement, recreation and parkway districts; sewer, sanitary and sanitation districts; several kinds of water districts, including storm water protection, water works, county water, municipal water and just plain water. Then there is the largest group of all, the 57 school districts.

The names of these various districts are of course, the key to their several functions. Their number and diversity indicate the complexity of public service. One area may haev a half-dozen different special districts, each with its separate tax rate, in addition to the tax rate of the county government itself, all levied against the same property.

The distinction between sanitary districts and sanitation districts is one example of specialized govenrment functions. Both of these deal with sewage. The sanitary district is an entity within the sanitation district. Sanitary districts build sewer systems to collect sewage in poulated areas. The sanitation district builds trunk lines to dispose of sewage collected by the several sanitary districts within its borders.

To show further complexity, two sanitary districts in Orange county include incorporated cities, La Habra and Placentia.

Complexity of government in Orange county is one of the "Know Your County Government" facts which county employees plan to demonstrate on "D-Day".
